of GLADIOLUS BULBS

Minnetonka Gladiolus Farms
R. 3, Hopkins, Minn.

Minnesota grown gladiolus bulbs, like Minnesota grown seed potatoes, have extra strength and vitality and are yearly increasing in favor with critical growers. Southern growers of early potatoes secure their seed stocks from Minnesota, many florists are learning that the soil and climate of Minnesota also produces gladiolus bulbs of exceptional merit. Many growers secure their planting stock here because of unusually high vitality and strength in the smaller size bulbs grown in this locality.

Our gladiolus farms are well suited for the purpose. Sufficient ground is available for proper rotation so that bulbs are not planted in the same fields in successive years. Planting stock is always treated with formaldehyde or organic mercury compounds to prevent disease. Bulbs are planted, cultivated and dug with modern machinery, and all operations are performed with the aim to produce the best possible bulbs at as low a cost as is consistent with quality. Our storage cellars are arranged to control both temperature and humidity so that the bulbs are full of life and ready to grow in the spring or winter when planted.

Some varieties and sizes have been omitted from this list because early orders have exhausted the stock. In addition to the fifty varieties listed herein, we have small stocks of about 500 other varieties on which we will be pleased to quote you, if you will send us names and amounts of varieties desired.

Prices quoted are f. o. b. Hopkins, or Minneapolis, Minn., except for bulblets which are quoted by the quart prepaid. Prices shown on bulbs are per 1,000; on bulblets, per quart. 100 bulbs or more at the 1,000 rate; one pint of bulblets at quart rate. For smaller quantities add 10%. Special prices will be quoted on large quantities.
